

Henkel in the USA

Henkel entered the US market in 1960, when it acquired Standard Chemical Products, Inc. Strategic partnerships established beginning in the 1970s with Clorox and later with Ecolab and Loctite led to shareholdings in these companies and to the takeover of Loctite in 1997.

Through the purchase of The Dial Corporation in 2004, the biggest acquisition in the company's history, as well as that of Advanced Research Laboratories (ARL), Orbseal, and Sovereign Specialty Chemicals, the Henkel Group has repositioned itself in the USA.
